AXA IM Controversial weapons policy

The production and use of certain weapons have been deemed unacceptable under international conventions and even illegal within certain jurisdictions because they may cause severe harm to civilians during and after the conflicts and generate significant long term health and safety effects on the civilian population.

These controversial weapons regulated by international conventions are anti-personnel landmines, cluster munitions, chemical, biological and nuclear weapons (collectively referred to as “Controversial Weapons”).

Since 2008, AXA IM has implemented an exclusion policy for investment in companies involved in anti-personnel landmines and cluster bombs. This exclusion policy has been extended to include those companies involved in depleted uranium, chemical and biological weapons and those companies in breach with the Non-proliferation Treaty for nuclear weapons.

AXA IM considers that investment in companies involved in Controversial Weapons (“Excluded Companies”) or provisions to such companies should be avoided. This policy defines a set of rules and procedures which aim at addressing this principle within the AXA IM Group.

It is to be noted in addition that AXA IM will not develop any business with the Excluded Companies.
